

Employment

Key points

- The State should provide the adequate training
- Young people living in care should receive the support from the state regarding their career
- The young people in care who are seeking for the wanted vacancy should not be discriminated by the employers

- The employers should be subsidized by the government (State) in order to provide the job to young people living in care.

- The young people living in care should receive a positive impact from the caregivers.

The State should provide the adequate training

- Curriculum Vitae
- Application letter
- Interview skills

Young people living in care should receive the support from the state regarding their career

- Direction/Development/improvement of their strengths (e.g. education, employment and creativity.)

The young people in care who are seeking for the wanted vacancy should not be discriminated by employers

- Social Status
- Gender
- Race
- Historical background

The employers should be subsidized by the government (State) in order to provide the vacancies to young people living in care.

- Create opportunities
- Stability
- Financial Independence
- Self-confidence

The young people living in care should receive a positive impact from the caregivers

- Self-confidence
- Motivation
- Encouragement

Suggested Solutions

.The mentioned needs must be equally respected and enforced Internationally